

THE BISTRO

AT WOODENBRIDGE

The Woodenbridge Hotel and Lodge has evolved from a small, two-story thatched house established in 1608 to a vibrant hotel with sixty nine bedrooms and two restaurants and bars.

Famous patrons included Daniel O'Connell, Sir Walter Scott, Charles Stewart Parnell, John Redmond and Michael Collins. Eamon De Valera spent his honeymoon here.

The Woodenbridge gets its name from a timber bridge built by the engineers of King William's army in 1691. This was swept away in a flood and a stone bridge was built in 1770.

The hotel benefited from the mineral and copper mines in the Avoca Valley and the Wicklow Gold Rush in 1796.

Thomas Moore brought fame to the area in 1808 with his melody 'Sweet Vale of Avoca'.

The arrival of the railway station in 1863 meant that the hotel could offer weekend rail and hotel trips. The Woodenbridge Golf Club opened in 1884.

The Woodenbridge was self sufficient in the late 19th century, with its own farm, kitchen gardens, stables and butchery.

The Bistro is keeping up that tradition by having locally sourced produce, ales and spirits on the menu.
